

“People often say that this or that person has not yet found himself. But the self is not something one finds, it is something one creates”

Thomas Szasz

Photo-ID: Photographers and Scientists Explore Identity

Keith Roberts

with contributions from Christine Hauskeller
and Barbara Jennings

3

This book accompanies the exhibition of the same name, shown at The Forum, Norwich from 1 to 28 August 2009. The exhibition, produced by the Norfolk Contemporary Art Society, formed part of Contemporary Art Norwich 2009 (CAN09) and was supported by the Wellcome Trust. CAN09 was produced by the Norfolk & Norwich Festival.

First published in Great Britain in 2009 by Norfolk Contemporary Art Society,
c/o Curran Publishing Services Ltd.,
St Mary Coslany,
St Mary's Plain,
Norwich,
NR3 3AF

We gratefully acknowledge a Society Award from wellcometrust

The individual chapters here are the copyright of the respective authors and are published here for the first time. The moral right of Keith Roberts, Christine Hauskeller and Barbara Jennings to be identified as the authors of this work has been asserted.

All rights reserved. No part of this book covered by the copyright hereon may be reproduced or used in any format in any form or by any means - graphic, electronic, or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, taping or information storage and retrieval systems - without the permission of the publisher.

Photo-ID: Photographers and Scientists Explore Identity
ISBN 978-0-9552498-2-2

Layout and design: Nigel Orme
Printed and bound in Great Britain by Colour Print, Norwich

www.photo-id.org.uk

Contents

Acknowledgements	6
Introduction	7
Photography, Identity and Photo-ID	15
The Genetic Re-Making of Human Identity and Why It Should Not Be Trusted. Christine Hauskeller	37
Genetics and identity; explaining our history, defining our futures? Barbara Jennings	51
Photo-ID Catalogue	61
Identity in “quotes”	106
References and Further Reading	108

Acknowledgements

Both the Photo-ID exhibition and the Photo-ID book have been the collective result of many hands, and my heartfelt thanks go out to them all. First I want to commiserate with, but thank, the hundreds of unsuccessful applicants who applied for the Photo-ID commissions. It was heartbreaking to turn down so many talented artists. But really special thanks must go to the ten successful photographers whose hard work finally formed the glorious core of the exhibition. I thoroughly enjoyed talking to and working with all of them. Second, thank you to our two partners in this venture, The Forum and Norwich University College of the Arts, who have both been essential in realizing the project, and in particular Paul Grace from NUCA and Dorothy Smith, Darren Cross and their staff at the Forum. The latter two also served for two years on the working party that oversaw Photo-ID from its inception. They were joined by Robin Jesson from NCAS, Richard Denyer from NUCA and, at the early stages, Penny Sexton, Eric Homberger, Liz Edwards, Nicola Ovenden, Joan Luckhurst, and Diana Bulman all helped. A selection panel that included Gilane Tawadros, Martin Barnes, Lynda Morris and Richard Denyer expertly chose the final ten photographers. Eleanor Cherry from NUCA made the whole advertising and selection process run a whole lot more smoothly. Ken Arnold and Tom Anthony have been our supportive links into the Wellcome Trust, who very generously supplied the resources to realize the project via a Society Award. The design, construction and installation of the exhibition in the Forum were intelligently managed and overseen by Joe Geitner and David Cyr of George Sexton Associates. They provided clarity and practical help when it was needed most. Nigel Orme, my long-time artistic colleague, designed the logo, designed and laid out the book and oversaw the printing with patience and aplomb. Liz Edwards managed the rota of stewards for the exhibition, ably assisted by Diana Bulman, Nairne Plouviez and Nicole Roberts. And a big thank you too to all the volunteers themselves. Angus Carpenter from the City College independently looked after the formal evaluation of the project. Cate Allwood (NCAS) managed all the financial side of the grant. Sally Jeffery kindly transcribed the taped interviews with the photographers. Rosie Arnold, from NUCA, took on the challenge of marketing in the 21st century by organizing the Facebook and MySpace sites and Kaarvous Clayton did the promotional interview for Outpost Gallery. Anne Reekie did a great design job for the promotional materials. Rachael Paddick and Jenna Myhill handled the marketing and publicity, along with Daisy Turville-Petre and Matthew Sanders from CAN09, who also promoted the whole project through the festival. Alison McFarlane and the steering group for CAN09 were full of helpful insights and inspiration. Julian and Rachael at Netcase Web Solutions did a great job in setting up and supporting the Photo-ID website at www.photo-id.org.uk. On the science side I had helpful early conversations with Chris Tyler-Smith (Sanger Centre, Cambridge), Thomas Haizel (Anglia DNA Services Ltd.), and David Cooper (Cardiff University). Barbara Jennings (UEA) and Christine Hauskeller kindly contributed outstanding chapters to this book, and Barbara also provided the material for the People of Great Britain installation in the exhibition. Gary and Wendy of BBC Voices conceived and produced the additional event in Fusion, and Phil Smith (TSN) delivered a schools outreach educational project. I had helpful conversations with Marjorie Althorpe-Guyton, Isabel Vasseur, Robin Williams, Hugh Aldersey-Williams, Patricia Hollis, Geoff Dyer, Tim Bishop and Lynda Morris. I received solid support throughout from the NCAS committee, ably chaired by Susan Curran, and without my family and their support, as usual, nothing would have happened at all.